| Kendall, Oliver Julian | 30-Dec-1888 | 26-May-1918 | WW-I | Army | First Lieutenant | (3' Tall Cross Marker) Place 4 flags in front of his Marker. His body was discovered in France in the spring of 1919, 5 miles behind what had been enemy lines on WW-I's infamous Western Front. He was captured May 25, 1918, while leading an infantry patrol of 50 men to string barbed wire near the front of American defensive positions. With full knowledge of what days later would become the first American offensive of the war, an attack on the village of Cantigny, he refused to talk to those who had taken him prisoner. He suffered a torturous death at the hands of his German captors. His throat had been cut and he was missing nine teeth. | Naperville City Cemetery |

| Kohl, Richard (Dick) Conrad | 22-Dec-1926 | 16-Dec-2017 | WW-II Korea | Navy Army | First Lieutenant | Near the end the of WW-II, while attending MIT, Richard enlisted in the Navy one day short of his 18th birthday. He was placed in the Naval Research/Radar/Sonar Lab as an Electronic Techronic Mate Second Class. After returning to MIT he enrolled in the Army ROTC and earned a degree in Mechanical Engineering. After graduating he was called into service in the Korean War in 1951 as a 1st Lieutenant in the Army Corp. He was badly burned at Panmunjom in a helium explosion, due to saving the life of another soldier whose hair was on fire. He was treated in the famous 4077 Mash hospital, and re-assigned to Japan for a year, where his wife Betsy joined him and worked as a "Gray Lady" nursing wounded soldiers. They later hosted two Japanese women, Hiroshima survivors, in their New Jersey home, so that the women could receive medical treatment. | Naperville City Cemetery |

| Lorenzen, Gottfried (Goff) | 13-Mar-1950 | 07-Mar-2019 | Vietnam | Army | | Served from June 1969 to January 1972. He was sent to Vietnam, where he managed the supply room, assisted on helicopter repairs, and served as a gunner on a helicopter. One of the few stories that Goff used to tell about his time in Vietnam happened one day after he took a shower in the barracks. He reached for his towel, which was on a hook by the shower, and wrapped it around his waist. He very quickly realized something was wrong as hundreds of fire ants, that had previously been on his towel, began biting him in every region covered by the towel. He had to be choppered to a medical ship positioned off the coast of Vietnam. | Saints Peter & Paul Cemetery |

| Miley, Daniel Mentzer | 01-Apr-1843 | 18-Mar-1902 | Civil War | Army | Private | (75 Feet From South End – Cluster of 4 Stones) Enlisted at Lancaster August 19, 1861, as a private with Co. A, 79 th Pennsylvania Infantry. On October 8, 1862, he was wounded at the battle of Chapin Hills (Perryville) in Kentucky, and apparently hospitalized. His service records spell his surname both "Meiley" and "Mylen," while the company register has him listed as "Meiley." Enlisted as "Daniel Mentzer" at St. Louis, Missouri, September 4, 1863, as a private with Co. B, 7 th Missouri Cavalry. On September 4, 1864, he transferred to Co. H and was promoted to sergeant October 14, 1863, only to be reduced to ranks December 13 following. Falling ill, he was furloughed to recover and performed little active duty after his return to the regiment. He was eventually admitted to the hospital at Jefferson Barracks in St. Louis where he discharged the service by surgeon's certificate to date September 9, 1864, for "phthisis pulmonalis." | Naperville City Cemetery |

| Snow, Richard (Rich) Leroy | 05-Dec-1921 | 20-Jan-2015 | WW-II | Army Air Forces | Captain | Served from 21-Jan-1942 to 1946 Trained in Arcadia, Florida. Even flight training was not without adventure, as Rich. bailed out of a disabled plane. He was assigned to the Air Transport Command, delivering new aircraft from manufacturers in the US to air bases in India, Africa, and Australia. He flew P39's to B-17 bombers to C-46 and other four-engine aircraft. He then received special-flight training in Reno, Nevada, in early 1944, and started a 10 month, 1,000 air-hours tour of duty, first out of Casablanca, Morocco, then Cairo, Egypt. Flying C-46's from these bases, Rich delivered cargo and passengers to and from Egypt, Persia (now Iran), Iraq, India, and Russia. Rich signed up for a second overseas tour in 1945, ferrying the massive troop redeployment from Europe to the Pacific theatre aboard C-54's, the planned but never-used invasion force approaching the Japanese main islands. This tour continued after V-J day, as his "hospital plane" brought home countless wounded soldiers from extended-care centers on Pacific bases. | Naperville City Cemetery |

| Truesdale, John Clark, Rev. | 22-Jun-1833 | 30-Nov-1904 | Civil War | Army | Chaplain | (Military Marker) 105 th Pennsylvania Infantry Regiment In 1863 he was a private in the 57 th Pennsylvania Militia during Lee's invasion on Gettysburg and Morgan's raid through Kentucky, Indiana & Ohio. With a theological education, he was appointed the next year as Chaplain to the 105 th Pennsylvania Veteran Infantry. They were in 38 of the pitched battles, and were 9 th on the list of regiments in all the Union armies to lose the most officers and men killed or mortally wounded in action. August 9, 1864 he narrowly escaped the horrendous explosion of the arsenal at City Point, Virginia, General Grant's headquarters. A barge loaded with 30,000 artillery shells and 75,000 rounds of small arms ammunition was detonated, leaving 43 people killed instantly and 126 wounded, so that the death toll was ultimately estimated at about 300. The wharf was almost entirely destroyed and the damage was set at $2 million. It was learned later that it was a case of rebel sabotage. | Big Woods Cemetery |
